RAF mourns Afghan victim

THE funeral of an RAF hero killed when his Nimrod plane crashed over Afghanistan took place yesterday.

Sgt John Langton, 29, died with 13 colleagues in what was the biggest single loss of Air Force life in more than two years. The MR2 crashed 12 miles west of Kandahar in September.

Sgt Langton's friends and family paid their respects to a man described as an "effervescent character" in a quiet service at St Austin's Catholic Church, in his native Liverpool.

GIRL KILLED IN BASRA BLAST

DANGER: Brit troops on patrol in Basra yesterday

Hero lass one of boat bomb dead

■ BY TOM SAVAGE
ONE of the hero Brit squaddies killed in the Basra boat blast was a woman.

The unnamed girl is only the second British female to be killed in the three-year war.

She died with three comrades when a bomb exploded under a bridge as two boats passed underneath. Three more soldiers were hurt. Sources in Iraq said last night one was "very desperately ill and clinging to life".

The bomb is thought to have been detonated by remote control as the boats passed under a bridge on the Shatt al Arab waterway, on the border with Iran.

Smuggle

The MoD said the dead were from the the Royal Signals, the Intelligence Corps, 539 Assault Squadron Royal Marines and a Royal Marine from 45 Commando attached to 539 Assault Squadron Royal Marines.

Investigators were last night probing whether Iran helped smuggle the explosives into Iraq.

The tragedy came as Tony Blair issued a stark warning to Iran - help bring peace to Iraq or else. In the past, Iran has been accused of being behind attacks on coalition troops. Mr Blair said Iran had "a clear strategic choice" on whether it will assist the Middle East peace process.

The PM then warned: "Alternatively they face the consequences of not doing so: isolation."

NOEL A DOUBLE DEALER

Xmas prize up to £1½m

■ by NIGEL PAULEY
DEAL Or No Deal fans are in for a bumper festive bonus – the jackpot will double to £500,000.

Noel Edmonds will front two special prime-time editions of the hit gameshow over Christmas. And two lucky contestants will have the chance to play for both £500,000 AND the usual £250,000. That's because the £500,000 prize will be concealed in the £15,000 box. Noel, 57, reckons doubling the jackpot will add "a bit of festive frivolity". And it should see ratings rise even further. The show already attracts up to 4million in its current teatime slot. A spokesman for makers Endemol said: "We're replacing the £15,000 prize with a whopping £500,000 – which will be a nice prezzie. We are upping the stakes and the suspense."

Rivals

The specials will be screened on Christmas Day and Boxing Day. And Channel 4 chiefs hope the two shows will help them give rival offerings from the BBC and ITV a run for their money in the ratings.

A source said: "We hope to make a couple of people very happy, while spoiling our rivals' Christmas. Deal Or No Deal is our best hope in years to nick peak-time viewers. We can't wait to see how it does against whatever BBC1 and ITV1 serve up."

Meanwhile, Channel 4 bosses are hoping to give Noel a big festive bonus of his own.

He's now negotiating a new two-year deal. And he's in line for a big increase when his current contract, said to be worth £3m, runs out at the end of 2007.

● Deal Or No Deal is on Channel 4 tonight at 4.15pm.

LIVE & LET DAI

EXCLUSIVE ■ by JOHN MAHONEY
WELSH tourist chiefs were singing in the valleys last night after discovering new James Bond hunk Daniel Craig is a secret Taff.

Experts have found Welsh roots in both sides of the Casino Royale star's family tree.

Daniel's grandad William John Gartland Craig lived in Colwyn Bay, north Wales. And the 38-year-old actor's mum Carol is of Flintshire stock.

Last night tourism chief Dewi Davies said: "Hopefully Daniel will film a new Bond in Wales soon so we can feature him on our movie map."

THIS girl's a real Klass act. After just 24 hours in the camp the babe has got the fellas drooling all over her. But due to the lack of totty in there we can't blame them.

THE blubbery music mogul has already turned the air blue with a foul-mouthed rant at Lauren and upset Faith - he's pure comedy!

PHINA ⬆

THE telly babe threw her toys out of the pram when she wasn't allowed to take part in the first Bushtucker Trial - just like her Footballers' Wives character, she's proving to be a right diva.

STROPPY

HEADBANGER: Gest has been ticked off by show bosses after a series of strops in the show's first 24 hours

Sulking Dave rapped over jungle rants

■ from PETER DYKE in Oz
I'M A CELEBRITY drama queen
David Gest has been given a dressing down after a series of tantrums and rows.

Shocked show bosses and fellow stars watched in amazement as the freaky-looking concert promoter...
● Threw a wobbler after one day because he couldn't have chocolate and tried to bribe a cameraman £40,000 to get him some treats.
● Sent TV censors into overdrive by launching a foul-mouthed rant about Lauren Booth, 39.
● Upset comedienne Faith Brown, 62, by spying on her in the shower and making remarks about her infamous boobs.

Gest caused a rumble in the jungle within 24 hours of arriving in the Aussie camp. And his antics appear to confirm producers' worst nightmares about the ex-husband of Liza Minnelli, 60.

The creep, 53, has failed to grasp that it's a survival series and keeps calling it "a holiday". When he discovered the camp diet consisted of rice and beans, he went nuts.

Pleas

He called out to a crew worker: "How much do you get paid for this show? I will give you £40,000 if you get me three Hershey chocolate bars and deliver them to me here tomorrow."

His pleas fell on deaf ears before he launched into a bitching session with Toby Anstis, 37, telling the DJ he was still smarting from the comments Lauren made before the show.

She said: "I can't believe David Gest is going in. Is that for real? He's scarier than Michael Jackson."

Gest told Toby: "That Lauren is a fing c. You should have heard what she said about me."

TV censors then leapt in to sleep out Gest's rant.

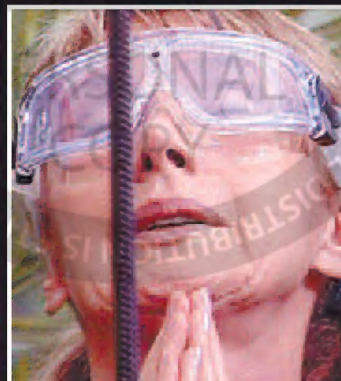

Later he upset Faith after spotting her taking a shower. In front of her, he said to Jason Donovan, 38, Matt Willis, 23, and Toby: "You could breast-feed all of us. We would all have milk."

But the comedienne failed to see the funny side. She raged in the Bush Telegraph: "I'm no prude but I don't like that."

After getting a dressing down in the Bush Telegraph, Gest seemed to settle in and even volunteered to clean the loo.

● I'm A Celebrity is on ITV1 tonight at 9pm.

JAN'S IN A HOLE LOTTA TROUBLE

■ TEARFUL Jan Leeming failed miserably in the first Bushtucker Trial after only managing to get two meals for camp.

■ Bossy Jan, 64, nominated herself to do the first trial, called Mine Shaft Misery, and took new pal Toby Anstis, 37, with her.

He lowered posh Jan down the shaft where she had to search for stars in caverns filled with spiders, scorpions, rats, snakes and bugs.

■ But flop Jan panicked and begged to be pulled out. She even dropped a star, leaving her with just two.

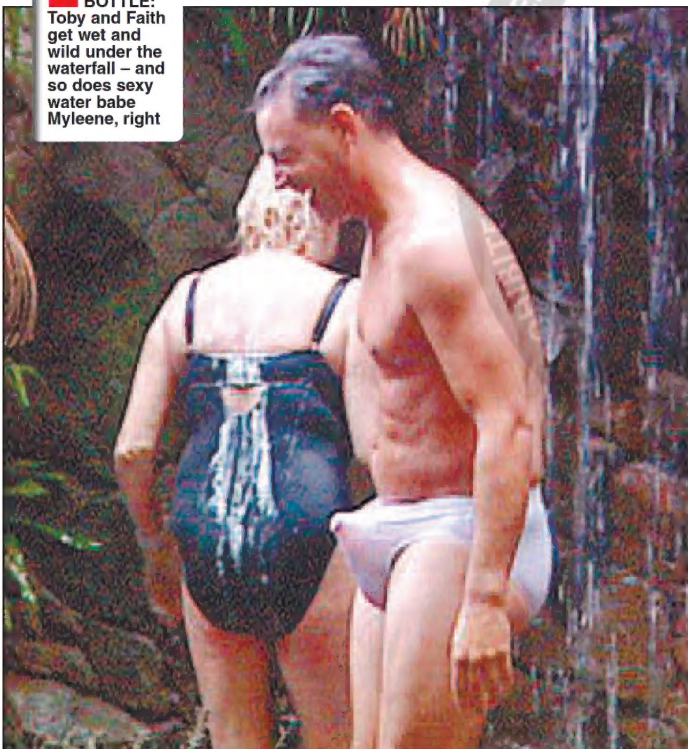

And she shrieked at TV hosts Ant and Dec: "You bs! That was horrible, I tried so hard."

Migrants' red carpet

YET more evidence emerged yesterday about Britain's shambolic immigration system.

Tony Blair may have vowed to end his open-door policy and secure our borders.

But the Foreign Office has been busy enticing new migrants with a propaganda offensive.

A pamphlet claiming that Britain is crying out for fresh blood is being distributed by British embassies around the world.

It proudly announces: "Multicultural Britain – A Land Of Immigrants".

It boasts that nearly 200 languages are spoken in London, while Indian and black children stay on longer at school than white ones.

Would-be immigrants are told they can land top jobs and are free to send cash home to their families.

And they are assured they'll be protected by the Human Rights Act and the Commission for Racial Equality.

Mr Blair's promise of a crackdown is shown to be hollow because this Government brochure is one big come-on.

No wonder the number of illegal immigrants here is estimated at 500,000 and rising.

Salute to a favourite

DESERT ORCHID was one of the greatest racehorses of all time.

He was courageous, leading from the front as he tackled steeplechasing's enormous fences.

He gave value for money, earning millions for his owners, trainer, jockeys and punters.

He never shirked a challenge, securing his most famous victory, the 1989 Gold Cup, in appalling weather.

He struck a chord with the public, who loved his enthusiasm and his desire.

And most of all, he was a winner, taking first place in an incredible 34 races.

If only our vain, over-paid, under-achieving footballers had these sterling qualities, then we might have won the World Cup last summer.

Dessie, we salute you!

JOE COLE'S £20,000 BOYS-ONLY BENDER

WAGs banned at big birthday bash

CHELSEA star Joe Cole threw a booze-laden £20,000 bash to celebrate his 25th birthday – for the boys only.

Cole was joined by team-mates including England aces Frank Lampard, 28, and Shaun Wright-Phillips, 25, at the secret bash.

But he ruled the night a WAG-free zone, saying he wanted to "enjoy a boys' night out" on his birthday.

And the lads certainly lived it up. The Daily Star has been given an exclusive look at their £20,000 bar bill following the blowout at London's posh Café de Paris.

We can reveal that Joe and his 50 pals guzzled their way through 60 bottles of Laurent Perrier champagne at £50 a time, 700 bottles of Becks beer at £5 each and 70 bottles of Grey Goose vodka at a whopping £130 a go.

An insider admitted: "It's fair to say the lads had a big thirst on."

Other team-mates at the party included Ashley Cole, 25, Wayne Bridge, 26, Didier Drogba, 28, and Chelsea skipper John Terry, 25.

Behaved

But because WAGs were not invited, birthday boy Joe's girlfriend Carly Zucker, 23, had to stay at home watching telly on Saturday night.

However, the players' partners insisted that the boys behaved themselves.

So professional party organisers Viewparty.com were enlisted to stop any wandering hands.

They had three large tables roped off inside the trendy West End club. And the partygoers even described themselves as "the prisoners of Alcatraz" as minders stood by.

Our source said: "The lads had all promised their WAGs they wouldn't even look at another girl. The guys from Viewparties were there to look after them and make sure no girls got to them.

"They even tried to blindfold them to escort them to the toilet because there were so many beautiful girls waiting to pounce."

Despite the WAGs ban, the venue was heaving with sexy babes – including Page 3 beauty Keeley Hazell, 20, and Gazza's ex Tanya Robinson, 24.

The insider added: "It was a strict no-girls policy, so the lads just danced with each other on the balcony."

"The guys from Viewparties policed them so well that they never got near the dancefloor."

The night almost ended in trouble when the lads left the club and stumbled into a brawl outside.

A thug tried to swipe a designer chain from Shaun's neck – but Ashley steamed in and sent him packing.

Russ? I need a hard rocker

SEXY Girls Aloud babe Sarah Harding claims she's left cold by loudmouth ladies' man Russell Brand. The saucy singer admits she'd rather date a hunky rock star.

Randy Brand allegedly told pals he wants to get cozy with Sarah. But the horrified blonde insisted: "No, he's got a bird's nest on his head! He's probably like Marmite - you either love him or you hate him, and I'd like not to hear about his sexual exploits, thanks."

She denied reports that she chatted up TV presenter Brand at the Q awards bash. "I never even met the guy - I never even said hello to him," she told New! magazine. Sarah, 25 - who has just fronted a sizzling new campaign for lingerie firm Ultimo - admits she is on the lookout for love, but possibly with a sexy rocker.

"I like rock boys," she said. "I saw Carl Barat from Dirty Pretty Things recently, and I was like, 'Who is that?'"

BRAND'S DUMPED BY MTV

by TOM SAVAGE and CAMERON MILLAR

RANDY Russell Brand has been dumped by MTV - for the second time.

His weekly music show, 1 Leicester Square, will be ditched at the end of the year, the channel said yesterday.

Brand was understood to be keen to keep the series going, despite launching a Channel 4 show later this month.

The former heroin addict, 31, was first fired by MTV bosses for turning up to work the day after the September 11 attacks in 2001 dressed as Osama bin Laden, 48.

Attack

But the channel hired him again in April this year to front 1 Leicester Square. Now it has ditched him again.

An MTV spokesman said yesterday: "It is always a difficult decision to end any show, but Russell and the team have done a fantastic job."

"Everyone at MTV is very proud that we were the first company to recognise his unique and exuberant talents."

It is another blow for Brand, who was recently dropped by digital radio station 6 Music. Instead, he will host a Saturday night show on Radio 2.

In one of the last editions of 1 Leicester Square to be recorded, Jackass star Johnny Knoxville launched an astonishing foul-mouthed attack Brand, calling him a "closet gay".

The actor also branded the Big Brother host a "c" and a "mean prk".

Knoxville, 35, told a stunned Brand:

SHOW'S OVER: Russell Brand

"I'm a huge fan of George Michael, but at least he admits he likes men."

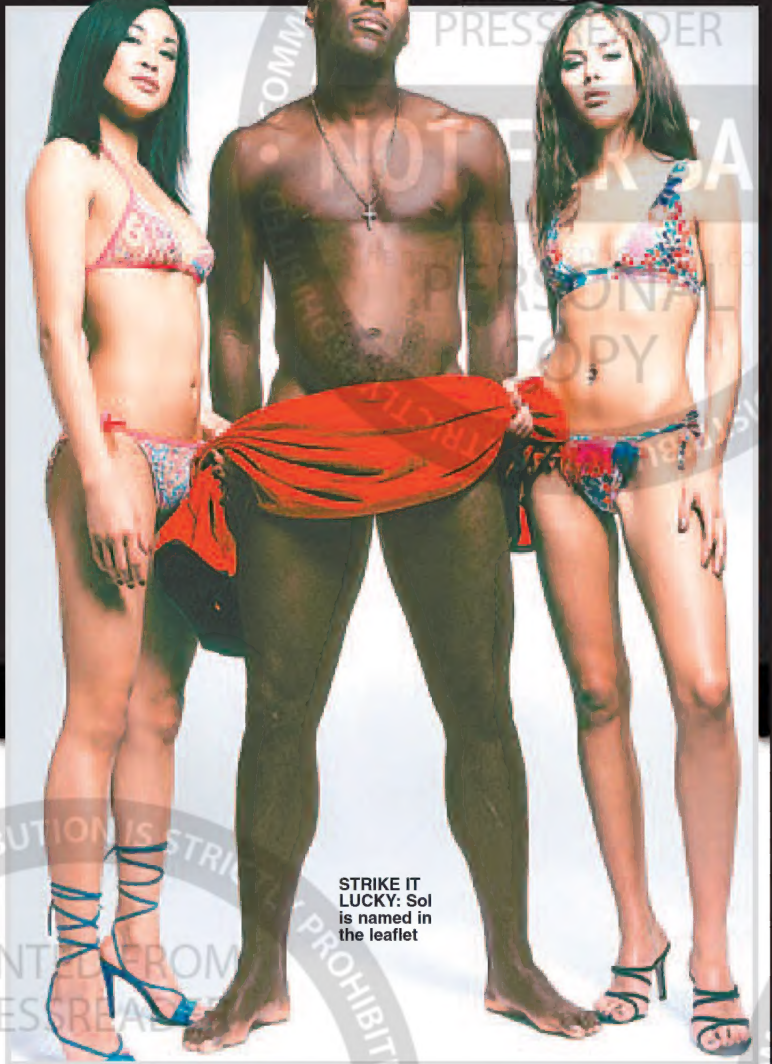

"Any guy who brags about sleeping with a ton of women and just obviously doesn't like women has got to be wrong."

● 1 Leicester Square is on MTV on Mondays at 10pm.

Embassies' invite to wannabe migrants

COME TO BRITAIN.. & BE JUST LIKE SOL CAMPBELL

STRIKE IT LUCKY: Sol is named in the leaflet

by JAMES WICKHAM

BRITISH embassies are handing out leaflets inviting foreigners to come to "Multicultural Britain - land of immigrants".

The glossy Foreign Office leaflet, dished out in Asia and across the world, boasts of what immigrants can get if they head here.

It describes how new arrivals from countries like Pakistan can land top jobs, earn a fortune and send it home, live how they want in their own communities and do better at schools than whites.

The leaflet even has a map showing where ethnic groups are concentrated in the UK and tips on using the Human Rights Act.

Children

The pamphlet names famous members of the UK's ethnic minorities such as soccer ace Sol Campbell and also boasts of "famous refugees".

Those mentioned include ex-Chelsea and Croatia star Mario Stanic, 34, Communism's creator Karl Marx, and pickles mogul Kirit Patak - whose dad fled here in the 1950s.

There is no attempt to tell wannabe migrants they should integrate. Instead the brochure highlights differences, saying: "Two in three elderly Asians live with their adult children

'Do better at school than whites'

'Land yourself a top job'

'Earn fortune, then send it all home'

(compared with one in ten in the white population)." Last night critics hit out at the leaflet, thought to have cost thousands of pounds.

Sir Andrew Green, chairman of Migration Watch UK, said: "It is hard to see the purpose of this document unless it is to encourage still further mass immigration, against the wishes of the British people.

Spotted

"The Foreign Office is supposed to promote British interests, not political correctness." The leaflet was spotted by MPs visiting Pakistan. Tory James Clappison said: "We are not a nation of migrants in the sense the Foreign Office is trying to say. It shows all you need to know about the prevailing view in some circles." A Foreign Office spokeswoman said the leaflet was intended to persuade other countries to avoid discrimination and respect human rights.

● BULGARIANS without work permits have been told to head to the UK because black-market jobs are easy to find.

A Bulgarian newspaper told of an illegal labour market in north-west London where bosses pick up east European staff.

SELL YOUR HOME FAST

Cash offered for your home - guaranteed

If you are like many other people who, for whatever reason, require a quick sale on your property but don't want to go through the lengthy, stressful process of conventional selling methods, FASTSALE will make an offer to purchase your property for cash - and fast.

Selling a property on the open market can take months, if indeed it sells at all, so they can make an offer that will take away the potential disappointment of a sale falling through. This way you have the complete peace of mind of knowing that you have a guaranteed cash amount to put towards your next property or alternatively release funds for other requirements.

The FASTSALE purchase process is one that entirely alleviates the pressures of selling because FASTSALE will usually purchase any residential property regardless of its condition and location. A lower than market value offer is presented to you based on a thorough external survey by a completely independent RICS qualified Chartered Surveyor. This allows for a fully informed, considered offer in return for a quick sale that benefits you.

We appreciate that selling your property by means other than an estate agent may well appear to be daunting, so FASTSALE are there to answer any questions you have. In short, a buying proposal includes:

- A prompt, hassle free sale
- No estate agent fees
- Your legal fees paid - up to £500

Special DAILY STAR tribute to race legend Desert Orchid

by JAMES WICKHAM

MILLIONS of punters were last night mourning the loss of horse racing legend Desert Orchid.

The gallant grey known as Dessie died peacefully in his sleep in his stable yesterday morning.

The horse, who was 27, was so popular he used to get hundreds of birthday and Christmas cards and countless presents.

His former trainer David Elsworth said: "There was no stress. He departed from this world with dignity and no fuss."

"Desert Orchid will be laid to rest at Kempton Park, near his statue, where many of his most memorable triumphs took place."

One of his owners Midge Burridge said it would be sorely missed by all his fans.

He said: "They all absolutely adored him. It is going to be terribly sad for all of them. I think they thought he was immortal."

The talismanic horse galloped his way into racing legend in a career that saw him win 34 races, amassing £654,066 in prize money, before his retirement in 1991.

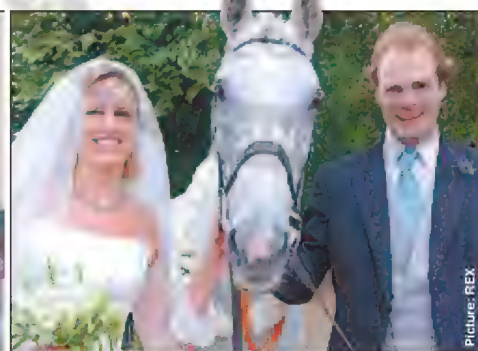

He was loved for his iron will and never-say-die attitude, which helped him score his most famous win in 1989's Cheltenham Gold Cup. He also won the prestigious King George VI Chase at Kempton four times.

TV racing pundit John McCririck, 66, said Dessie caught the public imagination because of his steely determination.

He said: "Some people identified with him as not the best but nevertheless a street fighter."

"He transcended horse racing and got into the national

GEE, WE'LL REALLY MISS YOU, DESSIE

TRIBUTE: John McCririck

conscience. There are few horses that do stand out.

"He was a flamboyant grey and a front runner, and people loved that. Desert Orchid had that indomitable will to win."

Even bookies who lost a fortune because of the heroics of Desert Orchid paid their respects.

Darren Haines of Paddy Power said: "He was a huge favourite for punters and a major headache for the bookies - but deep down we all loved him."

Ladbrokes' Robin Hutchison said: "Dessie was one of the great household names. He cost the bookies a fortune over the years but he'll be greatly missed."

Retired jockey Colin Brown said: "He was different class. I rode him in more than 40 races and won 17. It was like driving a Ferrari rather than a Cortina."

Fellow jockey Simon Sherwood, who partnered Dessie to win the Gold Cup, said: "He was just the greatest horse you could ever wish to ride in a race."

Skybet spokesman Dale Tempest said: "He was unbelievable - this white machine thundering out in front of all the others."

"That horse was something else. You need superstars in racing - and Desert Orchid was a real superstar."

LIFE A DRAG FOR PETER

by NIGEL PAULEY

COMIC Peter Kay is set to be seen as never before - dressed as a woman.

The 33-year-old funnyman is playing camp director Roger DeBris in the smash-hit Mel Brooks musical The Producers.

In the stage show, cross-dressing Roger is hired to put on the worst musical in Broadway history - Springtime For Hitler.

Hoot

A show source said: "It couldn't be more different from his role as club boss Brian Potter."

"But Peter being Peter, the whole thing is a hoot. Fans will see a different side to him."

The show, a huge success in London's West End since it opened in 2004, is getting a three-month run at Manchester's Palace Theatre

Sex shame Pc

A POLICE officer is facing prison after he admitted having sex with an under-aged girl.

Pc Christopher Billinge, based at Skelmersdale, Lancs, met the 14-year-old during an off-duty visit to Sunderland.

The 25-year-old, who has been in the force for two years, yesterday pleaded guilty at Newcastle Crown Court to engaging in sexual activity with a child.

Judge Esmond Faulks adjourned sentence until today but warned Billinge, of Chorley, Lancs, he will be going to jail.

BULLETS: Iorworth Hoare

Threat to Lotto rapist

■ by HELEN FREEMAN
A MARKET trader faces jail after threatened to pay a hitman to kill Lotto rapist Iorworth Hoare.
Sex attacker Peter Oates, 43, sent a letter and bullets addressed to B. East.
The letter never reached Hoare, who lives on an exclusive Northumberland estate, because Post Office staff intercepted it.
Newcastle Crown Court heard the typed note, sent in March, warned: "You are not welcome near our children or families."
Oates, of Brixton, south London, was trapped by a handwriting expert and DNA on a bullet.
He was remanded ahead of sentencing next month.
Hoare, who calls himself Edward Thomas, won £7m in August 2004, 16 years into a life sentence. He was released in March 2005 and moved to his current home nine months later.

X Ben in bug fight

X FACTOR favourite Ben Mills fears he has blown his chance of winning the telly talent show after being struck down by a throat infection.
The rocker, 26, is battling to be fit enough to perform on the live show on ITV1 at 6.50pm on Saturday.
An insider said: "Ben's extremely worried. He hopes he can shake off the infection in time, but it means he won't be able to rehearse as much as the others."

BRAVO! KATE LOOKS GREAT

Sexy new treat for curvy babes

EXCLUSIVE ■ by NADINE LINGE
GLAMOUR girl Kate Price hit a new peak in her career yesterday with the launch of a bra for big girls like her.

It's part of a sizzling range of lingerie she has designed especially for curvy babes.

"I love that my range gives you boobs," said Kate, 28 - alias Jordan.
"I like all the little bows and frills and the short knickers - they're exactly what I wear."
"It's the first time I have got a bra to fit me - normally I get the four-boob-bulge thing."

Wait

And husband Peter Andre loves the look, she said.
"Big bras can be frumpy and off-putting to the opposite sex," said Kate. "But Pete says my range is girly, sexy and cutesy."
As she posed for our sizzling shot in her new bra, left, the Brighton belle revealed that she has been forced to wait a year for her next boob job to REDUCE her 32G top.
Kate was desperate to shrink after feeling her boobs had become saggy. "I was supposed to go into hospital two weeks ago but I had a cold so I couldn't go under general anaesthetic," she said.
"I will have to wait a year to get it done now. It's a bit disappointing."
Fast-moving Kate is releasing an album of duets with singer Peter, 33, in time for Christmas. And their first single, A Whole New World, is out next month with profits going to five charities.

● The Kate Price Panache lingerie range - D-G cup - is available exclusively from George at Asda nationwide. Prices start from £5. Stockist No 0500100055.

XMAS SUMMED UP

How to beat Santa-claustrophobia at shops

SCIENTISTS have found the secret of the perfect Christmas shopping trip.

And it's all down to making sure your sums add up before you hit the shops with your list of prezies.

They say the formula, left, predicts whether you'll skip through the stores or trudge gloomily among the crowds.

It takes into account factors including how many pals join you on the expedition, how many presents you expect to receive, and how much you hate crowds. The equation was calculated after research into the biggest bugbears about hitting the Christmas shops.

■ by LAURA NEIL

Researchers found the joy of shopping is heavily influenced by how much you like crowds.

Over half people quizzed were suffering from "Santa-claustrophobia" and couldn't stand bustling shops.

Other bugbears were the cost of gifts, the annual struggle to think up present ideas and struggling home with heavy bags. Katherine Rose of High Street store TK Maxx, which commissioned the survey, said: "We wanted to see what makes our customers tick."

The formula for the perfect trip to the stores is $X = 10 + F + 0.2P \tilde{n}C + 0.1W \tilde{n} 0.2I + 0.5U - 0.3R + 0.01M \tilde{n}3H$.

Crowds

X is the joy of Xmas shopping, and F is the number of pals who go with you.

R is the number of rich friends you are buying for and P is the number of presents you expect to get.

C is your dislike of crowds. Count C=0 if you don't mind them, up to C=5 if you will do all your shopping at Sam. W is the number of sheets of wrapping paper you use and I the number of presents you'll buy on the internet.

U is the number of beautiful but useless presents you buy and M is the number of pounds you spend.

H is the humbug factor: from H=0 if you love everything about Christmas to H=4 if you are a total Scrooge.

If you score 15 or more you will enjoy every minute of your shopping, but score under five and you could be better putting it off until January.

WACKO Michael Jackson has spent £150,000 taking over a hotel after jetting into London for a comeback gig. He booked out the five-star Hempel Hotel in central London for three nights - with rooms for himself, his kids and 50 staff. Later he appeared on a balcony outside his £1,500-a-night Beluga suite to greet fans - but managed not to dangle any of his nippers over the edge, though the plastic surgery addict did look as if he was holding his nose in place. Michael, 48, will perform his hit Thriller at the World Music Awards at London's Earls Court tomorrow night - his first UK appearance in nine years.

ROMAN HOLIDAY: Abramovich is said to have ended his romance with sexy Daria before flying off in his private jet, below right, to the clinic, below left

by IAIN BURCHELL

FOOTBALL billionaire Roman Abramovich has been treated in a top clinic specialising in stress.

Friends claim the Chelsea owner has been under pressure over reports that his marriage has hit the rocks.

Wife Irina, 39, is said to have consulted divorce lawyers over his relationship with stunning Russian model Daria Zhukova, 23.

Roman, 40, flew out to the the luxury Lanserhof hotel complex in Innsbruck, Austria, in his private Boeing 767.

And he took over a whole wing – as well as its entire staff of 30 medics, life coaches and therapists.

Insiders say he spent almost £700,000 on having 10 days of intensive treatment to tackle "stress and nervous tension".

Detox

Austrian sources claim the oil tycoon asked to have his heart and circulation checked as he tried to relax and unwind.

The Lanserhof has refused to reveal details of his treatment but its website says stress-busting programmes include "bioenergetics and relaxation techniques and professional psychological counselling".

Sources in Austria believe Abramovich also had the "Sensual Detox" unique to the Lanserhof. It includes a deep-cleansing skin treatment, baths, masks and massages. Founder Andreas Wiesner says on the clinic website: "We treat our guests as individuals with personal competence and intelligence. You will return home a new person."

Mum-of-five Irina, 39, was said to be considering the future of her marriage after Abramovich jetted around the world to meet Daria.

But the model has allegedly told pals their romance is over, and she has returned to Moscow from her home in London.

Legal experts have warned that Abramovich could lose half his £11-billion fortune in a divorce.

But he denies that his wife has consulted lawyers.

His spokesman said yesterday: "We don't comment on Mr Abramovich's personal life and travels."

THE last time we saw a big grin like this on Sienna Miller's mush, she had just given Jude Law the heave-ho. So it's telling that the blonde mixx, 24, was being her snuggly again - just hours after ditching the nanny-botherer, 33, for the umpteenth time.

But Sienna insisted they will not get back together as she hosted Cartier's 27th annual holiday bow celebration in New York.

A source said: "It's brilliant to see Sienna genuinely happy again. But Jude wants to get back in touch."

Hey Jude, don't make a bad...

THE GOSS

Italian Cruise

TOM Cruise and Katie Holmes jetted into Rome yesterday ahead of their fairytale castle wedding with all the star's children snuggled aboard his private jet.

The 44-year-old booked into the five-star Hotel Hassler to prepare for the Odescalchi Castle bash.

Katie, 27, was in one of the Eternal City's spa suites while locals raged about the couple not involving them in their big day and requesting a no-fly zone.

PARIS CHUCKED OUT OF HILTON!

PARIS Hilton may have made 1 Night in Paris, but she couldn't make one night in the Hilton.

The Twit Girl, 25, is heiress to the Hilton hotel chain.

So the blonde heir-head checked into the Hilton Hotel on fashionable Park Lane after enjoying the mother of all London benders.

But the socialite, right, managed the most impressive feat of her car-crash career - being turfed out of her family's own hotel.

An unspeakably squiffy Paris decided to continue the party when she returned to her suite, so she attacked her mini bar with gusto.

But fellow guests at the establishment weren't as full of ginger and fizz, and didn't appreciate being woken up by the blonde bombshell in the wee small hours.

She drunkenly invited the bewildered residents to party with her, but most of the - mainly elderly - inhabitants would rather eat their complimentary dressing gowns.

Blast

So La Hilton and her rabble-raising ways were briskly removed from the plush spot.

Our man with the party poppers said: "She made a dreadful racket, banging on people's doors with a bottle of champagne."

"But most of the guests on her floor were elderly. And it's not really cricket to wake people up in the early hours and blast pop music out of your room."

"There were a few complaints. And shortly afterwards the concierge was removing her luggage and leading her to reception, where she checked out."

"She's so used to staying at her family's hotel, she was a bit lost and spent a few hours roaming the street with her suitcases."

"She was shouting at her people on the mobile, ordering them to find her somewhere to stay where her activities won't be questioned."

We should introduce her to Paris Travelodge.

HUSH HUSH

He sent out a message to his soon-to-be ex-wife during a gig at The Norva in Virginia Beach and it wasn't romantic. The freeloader, 28, flicked his finger into the air and yelled "fuck Britney" in the imaginary direction of the woman that has bankrupted him. Meanwhile, Brittney, 25, looked chirpy as she dashed from her New York studio to grab a Snickers, sporting a Christmas hat. Seems like it's going to be a better Christmas than she thought.

The new way to buy online

LOOKS like the moths have been at gnawing away at Nicole Scherzinger.

The Pussycat Dolls front-lady is a tasty bit of stuff so it's no wonder her stage attire has been a target.

The 28-year-old was trilling away at a gig in Munich. You know the drill. Sexy clothes equals hot performance of songs like Don't Cha, Stickwitu and all those other 10million singles from the band's debut album.

End of Stone age

Joss Stone is turning her back on the vintage soul sound that has made her name to focus on a more futuristic R&B direction.

The Kent-born warbler, 19, has recently been collaborating with Californian super producer Raphael Saadiq on her new – and as yet untitled – third album.

Saadiq, 40, has produced smash hits for neo-soul superstars like Erykah Badu, 35, and for two Grammy Award winners Jill Scott, 34, and Angie Stone, 45.

You can judge for yourself in March next year when Joss' collection hits the shops.

McFLY flew into a panic at Radio 1's Chart Show Live when Tom Fletcher mislaid his guitar. The axe-slinging frontman, 21, flapped around for two hours trying to locate his prized six-string. A member of the road crew eventually located it behind the lads' dressing room door.

Beyoncé GOES ballistic

BEAUTY LOSES COOL

Picture: SNAP

BEYONCÉ threw a hissy fit at Radio 1's Chart Show Live bash when All Saints burst into her dressing room and threw her schedule into disarray.

The singer, 25, had already lost her rag with her manager dad for the poor organisation backstage, admitting she didn't have a clue what was expected of her.

So when the newly-reformed Saints marched in, it was the final straw.

My source at the Brighton gig revealed: "The dressing room area was scorching hot so tempers were raised from the outset. And for someone like

hot EXCLUSIVE

Beyoncé, who is used to playing her own headline gig, a roadshow event is something she's not done for years.

"As a result, she couldn't understand why there were no firm plans of what was expected of her.

"There were loads of people milling around and Beyoncé had a 12-piece band with her, plus her security and crew. Her dressing room area was cramped."

Beyoncé headlined the event at Brighton Dome, which also included performances from Girlicious, McFly, Nelly Furtado, 27 and, of course, All Saints.

My source added: "All Saints were equally baffled about what was going on behind the scenes so accidentally walked into Beyoncé's dressing room."

"Beyoncé had a go at her dad Matthew, asking him who the hell they were and what did they think they were doing interrupting her. The situation got so tense one of her backing dancers ran away in floods of tears."

When Beyoncé did make it on stage, she thanked London twice – despite being 50 miles south of the capital.

Last night the Boyz n the City one recorded a Top Of The Pops special outside the BBC TV centre – in London.

Hopefully someone will have found her a moment to ring time, rather than Ring The Alarm, and have a well-earned rest...

JOE MOTT'S DOUBLE AWARD WINNING HOT

Edited by KIM DAWSON

MOTT

RECORDING of a new Foo Fighters album will begin in earnest in the new year. Dave Grohl, 39, tells this week's NME he doesn't think it will be "acoustic". But he says: "This whole acoustic experience has had a big influence over the way I look at the next few years."

BLING'S THE FLAVOR OF THE MONTH

- PUBLIC Enemy chatterbox Flavor Flav dusted down his gaudiest baubles for the BET Hip-Hop awards.
- The motermouth, 47, dripped with gold for the most glittering night in the hip-hop calendar.
- The inaugural event saw Mercury-nominated rhymers Sway, 24, walk away with the Best British Act accolade.
- Snoop, 35, Nelly, 32, and P Diddy, 36, all turned up at the event in Atlanta too.

CAUGHT LIVE

MY CHEMICAL ROMANCE
Brixton Academy

MARCHING imperiously onto the stage to the theatrical riot of No 1 single Welcome To The Black Parade, there can't be many bands capable of connecting with their audience quite like MCR right now.

Currently outselling Little Britain in the novelty doll market, the EMO quintet are the reason why the current crop of troubled teenage souls wear black and the type of panda make-up that can only be applied using oven gloves.

Shaken security guards didn't quite know how to cope with the swarms of ghostly faced girls dislocating their shoulders in an attempt to get near singer Gerard's silver hair. Particularly moving was emotive juggernaut of a ballad I Don't Love You along with Teenagers which had more peaks and troughs than the Scottish Highlands.

Helena blew a bass bin or two for the encore, rubber-stamping the fact that despite their so-called melancholic songs, and dark attire, MCR are about as euphoric as rock gets.

LUCINDA WILLIAMS
Shepherds Bush Empire

COUNTRY legend Lucinda Williams is worried she's too scruffy to be treading the boards of this venerable London venue.

"This is one of the fashion capitals on the world," she tells us in that deep, mesmerising Southern drawl.

She looks sublime of course, sporting a battered leather jacket and a peak cap pulled low over her face.

And she sings like the bruised, heart-broken angel she is. Tracks from the soon-to-be re-released classic Car Wheels On A Gravel Road are aired as are four new ones.

The biggest cheer of the night, however, goes to a certain Bruce Springsteen who pops up to add some guitar pyrotechnics to Disgusted and Joy.

A sadly all-too-rare pleasure.

HEAR about the bloke who got tired of his job as a sewage engineer? In the end, he was just going through the motions.

JAMES COX, Dundee. A MAN says: "Doctor, doctor - you've got to help me. I keep thinking I'm a jellybaby."

The doctor shouts: "Oi, get out of here, you twerp!"

The man says: "Oi, there's no need to bite my head off."

L. DOUGLAS, Liverpool. A blonde digging in her garden finds two hand grenades. She calls on a friend and asks her to help her take them to the police.

The pal says: "But what if one of them explodes?" The blonde replies: "I'll tell them I only found one."

Mr B. PARSONS, Bromley, Kent. Jokes by text...

£10 LETTER

THE mid-term elections were disastrous for George W. Bush.

Clearly, the American people used them to express their disapproval of the war in Iraq.

But I doubt whether this will make Bush change his tune. He may not be the only lame duck leader around, but he's certainly a lame-brained one.

MICHAEL SMITH, Chatham, Kent.

☐ I'M amazed that some football grounds are so full during the winter when a match is being televised.

Who in their right mind wants to freeze in a stadium and suffer huge traffic jams on the way there and back when you can sit in the comfort of your home and get a far better view?

COLIN FENN, Southgate, N. London.

☐ SEEING your recent pictures of Big Brother beauties Aisleyne and Jen, I can't understand why you ever waste space with shots of plain pains Nikki and Grace - let alone Pete.
